IV. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below: (5×1=5)

'Today's world can truly be called a "society of the spectacle", a phrase that the French sociologist and thinker Guy de Bord used decades earlier. 'Every act of lived experience has today become a spectacle'. It would be a little incorrect to say that this craze for spectacle-izing everything that occurs around us is a recent phenomenon'. If one had watched The Pirates of the Caribbean movies, one would realise that even in the late eighteenth century, executions were public events - a large portion of the populace would gather around the site of the hanging in the city square in order to see justice being meted out in front of their very own eyes. It was also a form of popular entertainment. It was a sort of a collective public blood-letting. The spectacle that the contemporary society has become is an overwhelming experience. One enters into a restaurant, orders an exotic dish - but the proof of having eaten it doesn't exist until tons of photographs are clicked from varied angles and shared on social networking sites, one goes for a holiday to a calm and serene location, but is all the while busy telling the world about it. It is as if one has to document every moment of one's existence, When does one live that moment then? Perhaps it is in the documentation that one survives these days.

1. Name the French sociologist and thinker who used a phrase called "society of the spectacle"?
2. What has become a spectacle today, according to the passage?
3. Name the movie mentioned in the passage.
4. How does a restaurant dish become popular?
5. Where does one go for a holiday?
